

Transcript: “Careers at the OIG: Veterans’ Recruitment Appointment” June 2017

I’m Shaun Peiffer. I’m an Investigative Specialist within the Investigations Division of the Department of Justice Office of the Inspector General. I served eight years in the United States Marine Corps. After a few months of being out of the military, the most important thing that I was looking for in a job was to build a foundation for my future. The VRA is the Veterans Recruitment Appointment. I was hired under the VRA because I am a disabled veteran, and I was discharged under honorable conditions. A large part of what I do is talking with the public and assisting them with their complaints. I’m interacting with all different types of people, and my time in the service with the Marine Corps, serving in countries such as China, Israel, and Morocco, has allowed me to become more effective in dealing with our complainants that call here. My favorite part about my job is I get to continue serving my country and I get to continue serving the public. Community service has always been paramount in my life, and to be able to continue that after the Marine Corp and continue that here is a great honor.

To learn more about opportunities at the Office of the Inspector General, visit our website at oig.justice.gov.